

Summer 2018

PAID INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH OPPORTUNITIES!

FULLY-FUNDED summer travel to conduct biomedical or behavioral research on health and health disparities!

Paid international research training opportunities for undergraduate and graduate students sponsored by the Minority Health International Research Training (MHIRT) program through Rhodes College.

Students from all academic disciplines are encouraged to apply. Both qualitative and quantitative research opportunities are available. Potential sites include Brazil, Nicaragua, Uganda, and more!

PROGRAM BENEFITS:

- Round-trip Airfare
- Paid Living Expenses
- Monthly Stipend
- Life-changing research and travel experience!

HOW TO APPLY:

- Application information is available at:
www.rhodes.edu/mhirt
- Priority Deadline: Dec. 19th at 5:00pm CST
- Final Deadline: Jan. 2nd at 5:00pm CST

WHO SHOULD APPLY:

- US Citizens and Permanent Residents
- Undergraduate and Graduate Students (Note: priority is given to undergrads)
- Students with a minimum 3.0 GPA
- Students interested in pursuing a terminal degree (e.g. M.D., PhD, etc.)
- Minority students and/or students from health disparate or financially disadvantaged backgrounds are given priority

